WHAT IS FACTORING?

Factoring (the purchase of a business's trade receivables) is an agreement through which the Bank (also referred to as the Factor or Assignee) purchases and then manages the trade receivables that are (or even will be in the future) due to the Assigning supplier by one or more of its debtors.

Upon request by the Assigning supplier, the factoring contract can give the Bank the faculty:

- To take on the risk of non-payment of the receivables due to debtor insolvency (non-recourse);
- To credit, subject to collection, an amount equal to the nominal value of the principal of the receivables assigned (normally upon the original due date of the receivables) and to then grant extensions to the debtors involved (maturity factoring).

The Bank, after signing by the supplier of a separate Convention, will be able to grant an advance, in whole or in part, of the receivables assigned. The Factoring agreement may also be signed to purchase and manage tax receivables.

The Factoring contract is governed by Law 52/1991 and by the Italian Civil Code, unless expressly waived by the parties.

Unless otherwise agreed, factoring operations usually involve the Assigned debtor being informed of the fact that the receivables due from him/her have been assigned to the Factor.

Any amendments to the general provisions governing the Factoring contract, also relating to the particular commodity sectors, specific types of receivables assigned or requirements to personalise the service, will be laid down in separate contracts or annexes to the general conditions governing the Factoring contract.

RECOURSE FACTORING OPERATIONS*Description of the service

In this type of factoring operation, the risk of total or partial non-payment by the Assigned debtor is borne by the Assigning supplier.

Risks borne by the Customer

The Assigning supplier guarantees that all the receivables assigned are real, liquid and collectible (including future ones) and accepts the obligations and commitments set out in the contract. In particular, the Assigning supplier guarantees the solvency of the debtors assigned and therefore, in cases of non-payment for any reason of receivables upon their due date, or wherever it may be reasonably assumed that the debtor will not pay, the Assigning supplier must return to the Factor any sums it has received as an advance on the consideration due for the assigned receivables, plus any conventional interest accrued or accruing up to the date these sums were returned, plus any fees or charges.

The Factor may choose to offset its debts with its credits, of any type, owed to the Assigning supplier, even if they are not yet liquid and collectible. By way of example, the Assigning supplier's debt for any advances it has received on the receivables assigned may be offset by credit arising from any new assignment and consequent release of advances and/or consideration payments.

The accounts receivable are intended as assigned with all their privileges, personal and real guarantees and other accessories, including any matured interest due for any reason (for example interest as per Art. 1284 of the Italian Civil Code, interest on late payment as per Law 231/2002, conventional interest, default interest etc.), it being understood that the consideration due for the assignment will be equal to the nominal value of the principal of the receivables assigned, without any additions to this consideration for effective collection of accrued interest. Delays in collection of the receivables will result in plus factoring commissions being debited up to the date the receivable is effectively collected as remuneration for the further actions that the Factor has had to take against the Assigned debtor in order to obtain payment. Plus factoring commission accrues with the other fees and charges agreed upon (for example factoring commission).

The nominal interest rate can be fixed or variable. If the rate is variable, it is associated to an indexation parameter (such as Euribor), conventionally taken as a reference which cannot be affected by the contractual parties, plus one Spread. This rate varies according to the performance of the indexation parameter. During periods where the indexation parameter has a negative value, it is conventionally attributed a value of 0 (zero) where a floor rate (minimum rate) has been agreed; consequently, the nominal interest rate will never be less than the value of the Spread agreed with the client.

Among the main risks, the following should be considered:

- possible rises in the interest rate compared to the starting rate;
- regarding the floor rate, the Client cannot take advantage of any decrease in the variable rate below the minimum rate.

The financial conditions and the other contractual conditions of the factoring agreement may be modified unilaterally in a manner unfavourable to the Assigning supplier wherever the prerequisites pursuant to Article 118 of Legislative Decree 385/1993 occur.

NON-RECOURSE FACTORING OPERATIONS

Description of the service

In this type of factoring operation, purchase and management of the trade receivables due from a particular previously identified debtor occur with the Factor taking on the risk of non-payment due to Assigned debtor insolvency under the terms contractually agreed upon and respecting the limits and conditions of the credit cover granted for each debtor.

In full definitive purchase non-recourse operations, payment of the consideration may be made prior to the due date of the receivable, with the relative fees and charges being determined according to the probability of future collection and within the limits contractually agreed upon.

Risks borne by the Customer

The Assigning supplier guarantees that all the receivables assigned are real, liquid and collectible (including future ones) and accepts the obligations and commitments set out in the contract. For example, the Assigning supplier's obligation to assign all receivables remains even if the credit cover should be revoked or suspended or in cases where the Factoring contract is dissolved, withdrawn from or terminated, until the Factor's exposure to risk has been extinguished.

Should the Assigned debtor not fulfil the contractual obligations, the Factor has the legitimate right to demand immediate restitution of the sums paid as an advance on the total consideration due for the receivables and not yet collected by the Factor and to render invalid the granted credit cover with the risk of Assigned debtor insolvency once again being borne by the Assigning supplier.

In cases of non-utilisation, even partial, of the non-recourse credit cover granted, in force from time to time, non-utilisation fees will be due from the Assigning supplier.

The Factor may choose to offset its debts with its credit, of any type, due from the Assigning supplier, even if they are not yet liquid and collectible.

The accounts receivable are intended as assigned with all their privileges, personal and real guarantees and other accessories, including any matured interest due for any reason (for example interest as per Art. 1284 of the Italian Civil Code, interest on late payment as per Law 231/2002, conventional interest, default interest etc.), it being understood that the consideration due for the assignment will be equal to the nominal value of the principal of the receivables assigned, without any additions to this consideration for effective collection of accrued interest. Delays in collection of the receivables will result in plus factoring commission being debited until effective collection or, if before, until the date the consideration for the receivables assigned non-recourse has been paid. Plus factoring commission accrues with the other fees and charges agreed upon (for example factoring commission).

The risk of revoked or invalid payment being made by the Assigned debtors remains the Assigning supplier's responsibility.

The nominal interest rate can be fixed or variable. If the rate is variable, it is associated to an indexation parameter (such as Euribor), conventionally taken as a reference which cannot be affected by the contractual parties, plus one Spread. This rate varies according to the performance of the indexation parameter. During periods where the indexation parameter has a negative value, it is conventionally attributed a value of 0 (zero) where a floor rate (minimum rate) has been agreed; consequently, the nominal interest rate will never be less than the value of the Spread agreed with the client.

Among the main risks, the following should be considered:

- possible rises in the interest rate compared to the starting rate;
- regarding the floor rate, the Client cannot take advantage of any decrease in the variable rate below the minimum rate.

The financial conditions and the other contractual conditions of the factoring agreement may be modified unilaterally in a manner unfavourable to the Assigning supplier wherever the prerequisites pursuant to Article 118 of Legislative Decree 385/1993 occur.

MATURITY FACTORING OPERATIONS

Description of the service

In this type of factoring operation, the Factor purchases and manages the trade receivables due from a predefined collection of Assigned debtors, crediting, subject to collection (henceforth, also maturation), on a date agreed upon between the Factor and the Assigning supplier (normally the original due date of the receivables), an amount equal to the nominal value of the principal of the receivables assigned, within the limits of the Debtor credit line granted.

Upon authorisation from the Assigning supplier, the Factor may grant payment extensions to such Debtors in accordance with specific contracts drawn up with each of them.

This purchase of trade receivables may involve the Factor assuming the risk of non-payment by such Debtors due to insolvency (non-recourse) in the terms and within the limits and conditions of the credit line defined for each Debtor, as regulated by the 'General provisions of the factoring contract'.

Risks borne by the Customer

The Assigning supplier guarantees that all the receivables assigned are real, liquid and collectible (including future ones) and accepts the obligations and commitments set out in the contract.

Should the Assigned debtor not make payment upon the due date, the Factor has the legitimate right to demand immediate restitution of the sums paid as an advance to the Assigning supplier for receivables and not yet collected by the Factor during the maturity factoring operation, debiting the relative amount from the Assigning supplier for a value of the amount initially credited subject to collection.

The Bank may, upon its incontestable discretion, suspend the subject-to-collection crediting of the assigned receivables at any time for the maximum number of days expressly agreed upon in the Maturity Contract.

The financial conditions and the other contractual conditions of the factoring agreement may be modified unilaterally in a manner unfavourable to the Assigning supplier wherever the prerequisites pursuant to Article 118 of Legislative Decree 385/1993 occur.

ANCILLARY SERVICES AND OTHER EXPENSES

Advance Fee Payment

The transferor can optionally apply for an advance fee payment agreement. In which case, the Bank can pay the amount of the

The Assigning supplier may optionally sign the advance fee payment convention. In this case, the Bank will be entitled to provide in advance all or part of the assigned receivables fee.

The nominal interest rate can be fixed or variable. If the rate is variable, it is associated to an indexation parameter (such as Euribor), conventionally taken as a reference which cannot be affected by the contractual parties, plus one Spread. This rate varies according to the performance of the indexation parameter. During periods where the indexation parameter has a negative value, it is conventionally attributed a value of 0 (zero) where a floor rate (minimum rate) has been agreed; consequently, the nominal interest rate will never be less than the value of the Spread agreed with the client.

The advance fee payment agreement can involve the issuing of guarantees in favour of the Bank by the Guarantee Fund.

The Bank operates in fact with the Guarantee Fund for small - medium sized enterprises, established with Law no. 662 of 23 December 1996 and managed by Banca del Mezzogiorno Medio Credito Centrale S.p.A., designated as agent of the temporary consortium of companies (R.T.I.).

The Guarantee Fund is governed by the national and EU legislation in force, and by the Operational Provisions in particular. The Operational Provisions and other information relating to the Guarantee Fund is available on the corporate website: www.fondidigaranzia.it.

The SME is obliged to respect the Operational Provisions and the applicable legislation in general.

In compliance with the limits set by the Operational Provisions and the legislation in general that applies to the Guarantee Fund, the Bank can in any case issue other personal bank and insurance guarantees (for example, sureties or patronage).

COVID-19

The rules relating to the Guarantee Fund described below, for the transactions to be concluded pursuant to Article 13 “Central SME Guarantee Fund” of Decree Law 23 of 8 March 2020 (so-called “Liquidity Decree”), are temporarily integrated by the provisions of reference. For further information and/or clarifications relating to the rules envisaged for the Guarantee Fund by the Liquidity Decree, please refer to this section of the Bank’s website www.bancaifis.it: “Financial support measures for SMEs affected by the Covid-19 epidemic”.

GUARANTEE FUND

The purpose of the Guarantee Fund is to issue a guarantee in favour of banks and other parties that can facilitate access to credit for SMEs.

The Guarantee Fund can be accessed with the issue of a direct guarantee (the “Direct Guarantee”) as described in the Operational Provisions of the Guarantee Fund.

Subject to assessment of the Customer’s creditworthiness, the conclusion of the loan with the intervention of the Guarantee Fund may entail an advantage for the Customer in terms of a lower interest rate applied or a greater amount of the loan granted or a lower amount of other collateral or personal guarantees.

The Direct Guarantee is requested by the Bank, is explicit, unconditional, irrevocable and refers to a single exposure.

In the event of a request from the SME to the Bank, the eligibility for the guarantee will be assessed, within the limits and in line with the characteristics of the financing transaction.

The assessment of eligibility includes verifying the existence of certain dimensional, organisational, economic and financial parameters, on the basis of the Operational Provisions and, in general, of the current legislation.

The Guarantee Fund decides on the inputs of the Direct Guarantee. In any case, the granting inputs provide that coverage, in the event of a Direct Guarantee, cannot exceed 80% of the loan; moreover, the maximum amount that can be guaranteed for each company is 2,500,000.00 Euro. However, the percentage of coverage and the maximum guaranteed amount may be lower for certain categories of transactions, if provided for by the Operational Provisions and in general by current legislation.

No other guarantee can be acquired on the loan amount guaranteed by the Guarantee Fund. Certain hedging operations of the Guarantee Fund dictate that the issue of other guarantees in general, in addition to that issued by the Guarantee Fund, is not admissible.

Access to the Guarantee Fund in the case of Direct Guarantee may involve the obligation to pay a one-off fee (the “Guarantee Fee”). In this case, the fee is charged to the Customer, according to the provisions of the Economic Conditions indicated above.

The calculation rules for applying the Guarantee Fee are described in the Operational Provisions of the Guarantee Fund.

The Guarantee Fee depends on the geographical location and the size (micro, small or medium) and type of the financed enterprise (women’s, start-up, etc.), calculated on the basis of the guaranteed amount and according to the categories of financing provided for by the Guarantee Fund. For more details, please refer to the Operational Provisions available on the website www.fondidigaranzia.it.

In addition to the Guarantee Fee, any request by the Customer to increase the guaranteed amount that is positively approved by the Bank and the Fund, may entail the obligation to pay a supplementary guarantee fee (the “Supplementary Guarantee Fee”) which the Guarantee Fund will calculate on the basis of the Operational Provisions and applicable legislation.

All amounts relating to any Guarantee Fee and/or Supplementary Guarantee Fee, as well as any other future charges that will be charged to the Bank as a result of the positive approval of the Fund, when the Direct Guarantee is granted or the Fund approves an increase in the guaranteed amount (including those resulting from any changes in the rates of the aforementioned Guarantee Fee), are the sole responsibility of the Customer. Failure to comply with the Operational Provisions and in general with current legislation may lead to the ineffectiveness of the guarantee and/or the revocation of the related benefits.

In some regions of Italy, the Direct Guarantee can be reduced or excluded.

If the Customer intends to implement acts that involve changes to the objective or subjective conditions relating to approval of the guarantees or that involve changes to the loan granted or to the guarantees issued or that in any case entail the need to request confirmation of the guarantees pursuant to the Operational Provisions, the Customer must request the consent of the Bank, without prejudice to the rights provided for by law.

Among the main risks, the following should be considered:

- possible rises in the interest rate compared to the starting rate;
- regarding the floor rate, the Client cannot take advantage of any decrease in the variable rate below the minimum rate.
- reimbursement of the Fee due to the failure to complete financial transactions (Euro 300.00), in the event of failure to complete the Loan for reasons attributable to the Customer, following a resolution of approval by the Management Board of the Guarantee Fund;
- the financial conditions and the other contractual conditions may be modified unilaterally in a manner unfavourable to the Customer wherever the prerequisites pursuant to Article 118 of Legislative Decree 385/1993 occur;
- if the Customer is in default and the Bank enforces the guarantee given by the Guarantee Fund, the guarantor, individually or jointly with the Bank, can take action against the debtor Customer with any judicial or extrajudicial action to recover the interest relating to the loan.
